Millfields Mania

Cem moves into Prime Minister spot

Millfields Mania Celebrate Today CEM OWENS

Millfields First Ever Prime Minister

Last night's votes were counted and verified and today it was announced that Cem Owens, leader of Millfields Mania, was sworn in as Millfields 2015 Prime Minister. Cem will take up office immediately and start to move on his pledges. He said; 'I feel honoured and grateful. Thank you to everyone who voted. I'd like to say well done to my candidates who worked very hard to support me. I will make sure everyone's voice is heard.'

Millfields marched en masse to London's Round Chapel. The Chapel provided the perfect stage for the sensational speeches from the new party leaders. Members of the public lined the route, surprised at the scene. More than 600 children aged between 4 and 11 chanted in support of their parties. Buses honked their horns in support and shop keepers came out to observe the scene. The children returned to school to cast their votes.

Red Justice Party

Joshua Pilling

Joshua Pilling's performance yesterday was outstanding. Joshua was confident, calm and collected and started by saying: 'You've tried the rest, now try the best.' Children and adults cheered as Joshua and his secretary – Alejandro, aged 6 - explained that despite being the youngest leader he would not let Millfields down. His speech, full of sophistication, was littered with impressive vocabulary and was eloquently delivered. Joshua explained that his party was about justice, fairness and equality. He explained that they would relentlessly work for 'free education everywhere for everyone'. He went on to explain that as he was the youngest he would be available as Prime Minister for over a year and therefore would have more opportunity to bring about change. His Pledges were favourites of the crowd and when he finished the crowd erupted with whistles, cheers and claps.

Purple Power Party

Emmanuel Akam

Emmanuel- leader of the Purple Power Party – calmly and quietly shared his pledges; 'We want you to have better parks, less pollution and to stop children suffering'. Although the quietest of the leaders, he still oozed confidence. His well-thought-out pledges were supported by the crowd. He was the only leader to talk about designated pet areas in parks and about making improvements to play areas. Emmanuel went on to explain that he and his party wanted to child labour and poverty and ensure all children had access to a good education. The crowd cheered as the final speech came to an end.

Give More Get More Party

Ruby Andrews

‘Give more get more’ –leader Ruby Andrews- had put a lot of effort into their speech...

With great confidence and enthusiasm, Ruby Andrews and Finlay McNally walked onto the wooden podium followed by all their M.C.s. She started by stating: ‘We believe if you give more, you will get more!’

Passionately, she and Finlay shared their well thought-out pledges as they really engaged their audience. It was clear to see that the teachers were impressed with their wide-range of vocabulary. Ruby really involved all of her teammates in her speech which was inclusive. After all the pledges, Ruby hollered ‘The fate of the future at Millfields is in your hands!!’ which really got the audience cheering with a wave of support...

MTP LITTER- BUSTERS

HARRIS SCOTT - FENTON

The MTP Litter-busters clearly put a lot of effort into their speeches. They grabbed the attention of the audience from the beginning. A spectacular flip, which seemed like nothing at all to Felix- the deputy of the Litter-busters -opened their party slot.

“They spoke very well,” said a teacher at the event. Harris (party leader) spoke first and then other members of the party, all different ages, maintained the high standard as they continued to share their pledges. Even the youngest children were well prepared and eloquent. They spoke about the environment, free school meals for all children and a reduction in child poverty across the globe.

There was a slight mumble around the room when they were asked how they were going to fund their plans. Harris explained that they would take more tax. This puzzled some, and someone heckled; ‘whose money will you take?’ He explained by saying; ‘the money of the general English public’. Further mutterings erupted and although they ended on a slight low their efforts will not be forgotten.

Millfields Mania Cem Owens

The Millfields Mania speech was the only partly musical speech. They were very well dressed and Cem even wore a suit! He started by stating that he wanted every child in the world to be happy and explained how he would achieve these goals. One of the voters said; "It was good but the singing was a little over the top."

He then went on to say that; "57 million children around the world still have no education and over 6 million die from preventable diseases each year, we should help the children all around the world to have the same free education and healthcare that England does." Many people clapped and whistled - it was a very inspirational speech.

He finished by saying "We are the future, we will make a difference and we are the dream: Millfields Mania will listen to you"
