Millfields Learning at Home and at School

Dear all the amazing children, parents and families of Millfields,

Firstly, thank you so much for your support and massive positivity, and true sense of community over the last couple of weeks.

This has been a time of turmoil, anxiety and adjustment for us all but being part of this incredible community has certainly made the whole situation much more bearable for all of us I believe.

I really do believe that our school vision, ethos and values, and the strapline, 'We Love to Learn' has set the foundations for us all to react so resiliently, so compassionately and with such energy to this changed world we are navigating at the moment, and I think those values will continue to support us all way in to the future. The way that you have all adapted, the engagement with a range of home learning resources and the sheer enthusiasm from the children has only served to remind me further and more strongly that the amazing and inclusive culture of our school community goes further than the walls of the building and persists in the face of significant challenge.

I have been absolutely amazed and so proud to see all the brilliant learning that you have all been doing this week. There have been so many photos of such a wide range of learning activities and projects, as well as the workbooks and conventional learning; it has really kept the spirits lifted and the joy in the hearts of your teachers and indeed all the staff at Millfields that care about and miss you all so much. Please keep them coming!

Today we would have been celebrating the end of term at Millfields, and many of you would have been wearing your brilliantly creative home-made Easter bonnets and wondering who has won this year's competition. So, if you have time over the next 2 weeks, then why not try to make one anyway and send in a photo of you wearing it and we will have a virtual competition. Send your entries to info@millfields.hackney.sch.uk

So, next week, we start our Easter holiday period and, while school remains open for a few key worker children, it is officially a holiday. The regular teacher check-in and learning resources/sessions will be on hold from Friday 3rd until Monday 20th April. Teachers will, I am certain, want to check in with their classes at different points but will make their own arrangements with you for the next two weeks. Today, you will already have or should soon receive an email with the usual holiday home learning projects, so get working on those and of course you also need to have a rest!! I will, of course, be available as usual via email, so don't hesitate to contact me if you need to.

In the meantime, take care, stay inside unless doing your daily exercise, and keep washing your hands. Enjoy your time as a family - treat it as precious time that we are lucky to get! We will remember these times for the rest of our lives! Keep well and stay safe.
