Is A Walrus Really THAT Big?!!

We are at the end of another busy and very productive and enriching term at Millfields. Yesterday, all the classes enjoyed their second London Day of the year by visiting a range of museums across London. Reception classes went to the Bethnal Green Museum of Childhood; Year 1 traveled south to the Horniman Museum; Y2 enjoyed their trip to the National Maritime Museum in Greenwich; Year 3 were all wowed by their trip to The Bank of England; Year 4 enjoyed their experience at the RAF Museum in Hendon; Year 5 learnt more about sustainability at the Crystal Centre in Docklands and Year 6 visited the ever-popular Tate Modern Gallery on the Southbank. I heard lots of children enthusing about their trips to their parents when they were picked up yesterday, so please do take time to talk to your child about their experiences and visit some of the museums yourselves over the Easter or Summer break. Tuesday was 'Autism Awareness Day' and all classes watched a short film and talked in their class about autism and how we as a school include and support all our friends who have autism. Please look on the following website for more information so that you can also speak to your child. <https://www.autism.org.uk/about/what-is/asd.aspx>

Thank you to the parents who came to the Parent Workshops this week and to all the Y2 parents who came to eat lunch with their children on Wednesday. We hope that you enjoy coming in to school and learning more about what your children have been doing and how to support them at school. With this in mind, the week beginning 29th April -- 3rd may is 'Parents and Families' week at Millfields. there will be information coming home via letter and email this evening, so please do look at this as there is some homework linked to families for your child to complete over the holidays. There will also be lots and lots of workshops, opportunities to visit classes, read stories to your child's class, bring your family pet in to school and take part in Science lessons during that week—look out for the sign-up sheets.

Also during that week, Millfields will be marking 500 years since the death of Leonardo da Vinci, (something that is being marked nationally) so teachers will be looking for helpers on that day - Thursday 2nd May, to support the scientific and creative activities that will be going on in class.

Finally, we have seen some amazing homework projects in school this week, especially the Y4 China projects, Y3 work on the Romans and the Y6 projects around their work on the Amazon. Thank you for supporting your child at home and learning about their curriculum work in class through the homework assignments.

Finally, have a good Easter break with family and friends. I hope the sun may shine for some of the holiday at least and that if you are going away, you have a safe journey. Children start back at school on Tuesday 23rd April.

Best Wishes, Jane
